Hannah Happy, Mother Morose; Parakeet Pleased

Mrs. Stephen Whitney has a problem.

What to do with a "too friendly" parakeet that adopts your family?

Mrs. Whitney called the Townsman office Sept. 23 trying to find out if anyone had lost a "handsome bird, probably a female."

Seems the bird soared down out of the sky onto a tennis net at the courts in the west quadrangle at Phillips academy Thursday. It attached itself to six-year-old Hannah Whitney. The young lady was tickled and took the bird to a neighboring house from where she called home. Mrs. Whitney gathered up daughter and new parakeet and took them home.

But there the problem began.

Too Tame

For the bird proved overly tame. After flying onto Hannah's head out on the tennis court, it couldn't see anything wrong with walking around the Whitney house with Mrs. Whitney - perched atop her head, no less.

"It's a little too friendly for me," Mrs. Whitney confessed. She put it in a canary cage and tried to make the larger cage proof against the parakeet's attempts to get out.

"It'll stay penned up, I hope," Mrs. Whitney said. She promised to keep the bird for two weeks in her Taylor hall home to see if anyone claims it and then will ask the biology laboratory to keep the friendly feathered guest.

"Hannah laughs every time she sees it," Mrs. Whitney asserted, "even though I'm not laughing."

The club is seeking $1500 to underwrite the budget, Mr. McCullom explained.

The cheer-leaders, supervised by Miss Frances Collins, will see that all business establishments display the booster banner, Chairman McCullom said.

The schedule for solicitations calls for precincts one and five Monday night, precincts two and three on Tuesday, precincts four and six on Wednesday and all uncovered areas Thursday night. Students will meet their transportation at the playstead each night at 5:45, he explained, when Booster club members will take them to the various locations to be covered.

West Parish Church Plans New Building

A $75,000 to $100,000 modernization project is underway at the West Parish church.

The Rev. Hugh B. Penney said this week that a new building has been authorized, which will probably connect with the present structure.

Extensive renovations will be undertaken in the church, he explained.

A recent parish meeting voted to hire the firm of Arland Dirlam, church architects of Boston. The firm will draw preliminary plans and specifications. That work will start immediately, Mr. Penney said.

A time-table set up by the meeting calls for a fund-raising campaign from January to February, with final plans to be readied during that period. Bids will be requested and contracts awarded in March and April, with construction to begin in April.

Mr. Penney said it is hoped that a completed building will be ready for occupancy during September, 1956.

The Davis family was well represented at the meeting as Mr. Davis, father of the new master counselor, assumed the office of dad advisor of the chapter. Richard's Godfather, the Rev. Stewart Clark Harbinson of Ireland, spoke briefly to the assembly. Rev. Mr. Harbinson is the former rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church in Wakefield and came out of retirement to take over the duties of his former church for the month of August. Of late he has been visiting friends in Oregon and British Columbia, but made sure that he would be present at his Godson's installation.

Another Shawsheen boy who took part in the ceremonies was David Best, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Edgar Best of Argyle st., who was installed as senior counselor.

Hickey related the facts to the court.

He was sentenced to not less than five nor more than seven years in state prison by Judge Paul G. Kirk.

The two young men were charged by police with breaking into the Howard Johnson restaurant Sept. 4 at 4:45 a.m. Patrolman Duncan Cairnie and Patrolman Jacob Jacobson said they observed a man at the soda fountain and called for assistance. After police surrounded the building, officers said both men were found inside the building. They had, in their possession, a screwdriver, tire wrench and money bag containing $29.80, police said. They also reported that a cigarette machine had been broken and several bolts had been removed from a safe in the office.

Red Cross Annual Meeting Tuesday

The annual meeting of Andover Red Cross chapter will be held Oct. 4 in the Red Cross headquarters.

The meeting, open to all residents of the town, will include a short business meeting. Chairman

Leo F. Daley will address the group and the nominating committee will report, according to executive secretary Barbara Loomer.

Miss Esther Burnham of Gloucester will be the featured speaker of the evening, with a report on the flood disaster in the South-bridge area. Miss Burnham is field representative in this area and has been working in the flood-stricken area since Hurricane Diane hit.

Miss Loomer, in issuing an invitation to all townspeople, said there will be a coffee hour at 7:30, with members of the canteen serving. The meeting will start at 8 p.m.

high school construction. This sum would be in addition to the $1,750,000 voted by town meeting last spring.

The decision to call for a special town meeting came after long and detailed discussion of all possibilities for savings in the present plans.

Savings Considered

Architect Howard Rich told the committee, meeting in the school superintendent's office, that savings of some $57,299 might be made through changes in materials. Another $25,899 might be saved, he reported, if the committee decided to lop off a total of two classrooms while reducing others in size. Such a move would eliminate the four classrooms slated for the wing. While four rooms would thus be eliminated, it was explained that reducing room sizes would allow two additional rooms, bringing the total cut down to two.

Objects To Reduction

Supt. Edward I. Erickson seriously questioned the value of that move, commenting that he thought the plans were good as they are.

Mr. Rich pointed out that Stoneham, where a new school has recently been opened, serves 770 students with 27 rooms — discounting shops. Here, he said, there is to be a capacity of 750, with present plans calling for 29 rooms discounting the shops. Thus, he said, it would probably be possible to cut off two rooms if the committee chose.

Up To Committee

He made no recommendation however, pointing out that such a move would be up to the committee. He pointed out that he had been asked to find out where savings could be made and the reduction in classrooms appeared to be one.

Will Complete Job

In a financial analysis, Mr. Rich informed the committee that the actual figures now show a possible $212,229.11 deficit — cost of construction, fees, equipment and the like costing some $1,962,229.11 compared with the appropriation of $1,750,000.

He stated positively that the extra $200,000, if made available by the town, would finish the building and equip it.

It was recalled that the construction bid alone was $183,000 over the allocated amount. Thus, the additional funds would meet that figure and provide some $17,000 for the contingency fund and to meet expected increases in equipment prices.

Question Rebidding

Before the decision to call for a special town meeting was taken, members of the building committee searchingly questioned Architect Rich about possible savings from rebidding the whole job.

He pointed to rising costs all along the line and suggested that a rebid might very well bring in a higher construction cost than the committee now has.

Member Fred Doyle agreed that little saving would result from rebidding.

Major Changes

It was also suggested, at one point, that revisions in the plans be undertaken — but the architect quickly pointed out that major plan changes would require a complete new set of plans at a cost to the town which might not be saved in the end. He pointed out that his firm would have to charge for major changes where simple changes in specifications or plans might be very inexpensive.

Same Experience Elsewhere

Mr. Rich named three other communities where bids for new high school buildings have come in over 10 percent above estimates. Other architects, he reported, are allowing a 10 percent increase over former estimates because of the increasing prices for materials and labor.

Football Opener Saturday At Danvers High

The Blue Devils open the football season Saturday against Danvers, at the down-county town.

Coach Bob McIntyre said this week that only Bill Fisher at end, Larry Lynch at tackle, Charlie Dalton at center and Bill Dwyer at fullback can be named to the starting lineup.

Colds are temporarily sidelining several key players, while Frank Dyer, slated for a regular end position, is through for the year because of a knee injury.

McIntyre reported two outside scrimmages in preparation for the opener — against Lawrence and Tewksbury.

Voters Just Don't Care

It certainly is a shame that only 176 of this town's registered voters could find the time to attend a special town meeting Sept. 19.

We realize, of course, that some voters remained away from the meeting, hoping to thus prevent a quorum — and to thereby kill the request for more drainage money before it could be officially placed before the town.

Others, we agree, may have grave difficulty in meeting a 7 o'clock deadline.

But that does not alter the fact that there are many men and women in the town who just don't care enough or understand enough to bother about going to a town meeting.

Those persons who stayed away did the town a disservice. For their lethargy has forced the board of public works into a difficult position.

Whether or not the individuals agreed with the requests, they should have gone to the meeting and voted. That would have given the BPW a definite mandate rather than the resultant confused situation.

It is entirely possible that the town will be faced with another special town meeting soon — a request of the school building committee for enough funds to build the new high school.

While that group now has the money to do the actual construction, it has been explained that, sooner or later, there must be a request for more money. If all the construction is done, then the money would be needed for furniture and other necessary items; with such a request perhaps not needed until 1956. But we must face the strong possibility that the committee will decide to ask for more construction funds now. If they do, the voters should do their duty and attend the special meeting.

Townpeople should face up to their responsibilities as voters. They should recall that the town's system of government, cherished and nurtured through the years, is built on the active participation of all voters — not a handful.

If the voters do not assume their responsibilities, we suspect there will be a substantial move for a change in the form of government.

Those voters who do not bother to attend town meeting would probably be the first to oppose such a move, but we feel that their objections then would be of little value based on a record of non-attendance.

What Our Readers Say—

Editor of the Townsman:

Of course the Postoffice department has to live. So it must either charge the public as much for every service as this service costs it, or else live by taxation. It has to carry some things below cost from political motives, including the existence of customs that were originally established for what used to be political motives. So it must live partly by taxation. Wherever it has a monopoly, it can tax people by charging them a more than sufficient price for its service. Indeed, this was originally one of the avowed reasons for giving the postoffice the monopoly of letter-carrying. When I was younger it was understood that the post-office made about a cent profit on every ordinary letter.

At the present rate of all sorts of expenses, it is very likely that the post-office does not make a profit on carrying an ordinary letter. But the postoffice appears to have another small monopoly, the renting of post-office boxes to everybody who goes to the post-office to get his mail. So the department at Washington has for a good while kept sending the postmasters an order every several months, "Make the price of box rent so much higher — now make it so much higher yet — now jack it up so much more again" — till now the cheapest Ballardvale postoffice boxes are 65 cents a quarter, which is $2.60 a year.

This is a tax. Can we lawfully dodge it? Maybe. Several years ago there was a proposal that the Ballardvale office should be closed and we should all get our mail by free delivery from Andover. Some desired the change, but the majority of Ballardvale at that time preferred to keep our local office. The reasons are the same now except the reason of expense. But now it is going to cost each of us $2.60 a year to have our own office. For free delivery we should have to put up a $3 galvanized-iron box out in front, but then that would be done once and for all and we should not have to pay anything next year. What do we think now?

Is he kidding?

No, nobody ever asks us to insure only one end of his house against fire, windstorm, etc.

But, in effect, many people
DO carry insurance on only a fraction of their property.

We mean, they carry only a percentage — perhaps 40% or 50% or 60% — of as much insurance as they should.

They insured their property
when property was worth much less. Insurance should be carried not on original cost,
but on present replacement costs, less depreciation. (This depreciation is normally very little for well maintained property.)

Drainage Will Be Debated By Planning Board

The planning board has scheduled a complete discussion of drainage problems in potential sub-divisions for its next meeting, Oct. 3.

The items were placed on the agenda for that meeting, after the board was told that residents of Shawsheen Heights were asking what can be done about new developments shedding water into their yards.

Member Lee Noyes, voicing the complaint passed on to him from the residents, explained that the new developments tend to increase the flow of water onto land at a lower elevation than the development.

The roads are crowned, he said, which also tends to throw the water onto already developed land.

Mr. Noyes said Engineer Ralph Preble and he went through the whole area last week, noting many of the problems that face the residents.

Downing Sub-Division

Another serious drainage problem faced the board Monday night when a hearing was held on the Downing sub-division off Summer st. Engineer Clinton Goodwin, representing the owners, presented plans for a 21-lot development. Several questions of Summer st. drainage were raised by the planning board. That matter, too, is to come up for extensive discussion.

Flying Feather Farm

A third proposed development, at the Flying Feather farm, has not yet reached the plans stage — although Chairman Eugene Bernardin reported that the Boston realty concern has indicated that preliminary plans will be in hand soon. The board and many citizens throughout the town have expressed deep interest in the drainage, water and sewage problems that might come from the 160-home development.

RETURNS TO EMERSON

PLAN BOARD TALKS ON SCHOOLS

st. area and problems confronting the Shawsheen school.

Agree On Vale School

A report of the meeting, read to the planning board Monday night, said all four persons agreed that a new, 12-room school in Ballardvale should be constructed. They also felt that the town-owned ball field at the corner of Woburn and Andover streets would make a good location for the school. It contains some 20.56 acres.

Mrs. Hammond, the report stated, expressed the feelings of Supt. Edward I. Erickson on the Shawsheen school. He does not favor the addition of four rooms at this time, the report stated, but does think careful study should be given another school in the High st. area.

That section eventually may include several housing developments, the board was told, including the Downing estate, Flying Feather farm and several smaller proposed developments. The superintendent has pointed out that a school there would help both the Central and Shawsheen schools.

Mrs. Hammond asked both Mr. Goodwin and Mr. Davis to attend the joint planning board-school committee session Oct. 10 when there will be full discussion of school problems.

"They particularly want our help in site selection," she told the planning board Monday night.

Carmel Woods

The report on the Sept. 26 meeting said all four individuals had agreed that a Carmel woods site would not be good for a school — but Mrs. Hammond said she doesn't believe it is quite as bad as indicated by other reports. Mr. Goodwin had pointed out that the state requires a certain amount of flat land for playground area.
